data/evidence?

As yet, none, since the data seems to show that the program is working as intended

Did you assess any additional program learning objectives during this reporting period?

*⊚ Yes ⊙ No

0 NO

List the second program learning objective assessed during this reporting period:

Goal 5: Demonstrate advanced communication skills, including the ability to write lucid prose for specific rhetorical situations

For the second program learning objective assessed, other than GPA, what data/evidence was used to assess student learning? (e.g. capstone assignment, portfolio review, licensure examination)

Final assignments in ENGL 204, ENGL 422, and 300-level literature classes

For the second program learning objective assessed what were the results/outcomes/findings/conclusion(s)?

As will Goal 4, we were preliminarily encouraged, as the data seems to show that more advanced students do indeed work at a higher skill level. Please see the file attached to the first learning objective, above.

Attach any additional documents (data or survey summaries, charts, graphs etc.) that support your results/findings/conclusions (optional):

For the second program learning objective assessed what changes/improvements have been made as a result of using the data/evidence?

As above, none yet, pending further data collection

Who interprets the results/findings of the assessment? Describe the process (e.g. annually by the curriculum committee).

Each semester by the department assessment committee; we then present our findings to the Department at the May departmental retreat.

Assessment Activities

Please list the assessment activities (other than the assessment of program learning objectives) completed during this reporting period (assessment plans, rubrics etc.).

With the university's switch from Blackboard to Canvas, we had to redesign our data collection process. We attempted to use Canvas software in the fall of 2021; this proved unworkable, even with the help of ETO, and in consultation with them we switched to using Google Forms. We hope this collection method will serve us well for the foreseeable future.

We opened the 2021-2022 year by examining the results of the modalities survey we conducted in 2020-2021. That survey asked students about their experiences with remote learning during the pandemic. We were interested to note that, at least during the peculiar circumstances of COVID shutdowns, students responded equally well to in-person and online classes, so long as the class included real-time interaction. Students in fully remote asynchronous classes reported much lower levels of engagement and satisfaction. For online classes, students tended to respond positively to tools that are familiar and easy to use: Zoom, screen sharing, email, the Zoom chat function, Google slides, and YouTube videos were all popular. Less popular were breakout rooms (this seems consistent with a general student dislike of small group work), quizzes (a dislike which speaks for itself), and a few forms of software in less frequent use, like Perusall and VoiceThread. The Committee notes that popularity is not the only criterion faculty should use in designing their courses: no one likes quizzes whether they are in-person or online! More important is the takeaway that students surveyed in fall and spring of the 2020-2021 academic year resoundingly agreed that they felt engaged in their classes and would take those classes again—so long as the class had some real-time component.

In the spring of 2022, we designed a survey asking students about their perceptions of diversity in the English Department, as reflected both on our syllabi and in our classroom. The survey was distributed to faculty to be administered in 100-level literature classes, and any classes (literature or writing) aimed at majors; this survey was not designed for use in the Composition sequence.

The diversity survey received 54 responses. Overall, students responding to the survey think the Department is doing a good job: 90% either "somewhat agree" or "strongly agree" with the statement "the English Department provides experiences in the classroom that are socially and culturally diverse," and many students used free-response questions to say they thought the department as a whole is doing well. But as we know ourselves, there is always room for improvement. Many students noted the need for more diversity on the faculty—as one student put it, "Hire more diverse staff (and pay them better)." Several students called for more inclusion specifically of Asian, Latinx, and LGBTQ+ authors on syllabi, both within focused courses like the Latinx Literature class, and included in courses not focusing on specific groups. A few students expressed concern that attempts at inclusivity can seem forced. One comment expressing this says, in part, "the fact that they're trying so hard to appear as though they're on our side tells us that it takes effort... even if the intent is good, it's still singling us out, and it still feels uncomfortable." This can naturally be a tricky balance to strike, and will probably be an ongoing conversation for faculty members.
